

ELMER TAYLOR SIDES

ROSE DRISCOL moves through the townspeople, landing near ELMER TAYLOR as they watch the bodies get loaded in the wagon.

ELMER TAYLOR
Fine morning, ma'am.

ROSE DRISCOL
Is it?

ELMER TAYLOR
(talking to himself)
Justice has been served. That's what matters.

ROSE DRISCOL
How's our Marshal?

ELMER TAYLOR
She won't let me in to see him.

ROSE DRISCOL
That woman...

ELMER TAYLOR
You're telling me. I've tried twice this morn-

ROSE DRISCOL
You should speak with Colonel
Steel, since he killed these men.

ELMER TAYLOR
(intimidated)
I suspect I will, ma'am.

ROSE DRISCOL
And I won't trouble you any more,
Mr. Taylor.
