

PRINT

Never figured you to be the prayin type. You turn the page?

JIM

You could say that.

Print smiles and winks.

PRINT

O.K. Ranchin Jim Kelly.

The two smile and shake hands, their hand shake fades to a blur.

INT. DESK OF AN OFFICE -- NIGHT

89

START

A desk lamp softly lights the old copy of the Celebrated Jumping Frog with a bullet hole in it. Next to the book an ELDERLY WOMAN reads from another bound book.

V.O. NARRATION

(older woman's voice)

So started a new chapter in my life.
A loving family that would overcome challenges and forge new opportunities in a free land. The seed planted and cultivated on the plains of Texas would come to fruition as a life well lived. Indeed vengeance can be a virtue.

STOP

The book closes and the hand pats the cover. When the hand is removed it reveals the title, "A Child on the Plains of Texas, by Sally M. Walker M.D."

FADE OUT: